

I feel the law should be stronger. There should be one day a week that a person would not have to worry about a family meal being interrupted. Also the computers that ring three times and are programmed to hang up on the third ring should be outlawed. You rush to the telephone to find there's no one there after the third ring.